HOW BOYS LEARN

Three Statesboro boys who have tried to imitate Tarzan and to do tricks which were far beyond their skill, have been disillusioned. One bright lad is in the hospital struggling past the danger zone because of injuries to his vitals which would have meant instant death to an aged person. Another carries his arm in a sling because of breaks received in trying to do the unnatural with his hands, and a third goes without front teeth because of losses sustained in attempting a trapeze performance which called for more strength and skill than belonged to him.

There will be those who declare that such stunts as these boys saw and tried to imitate should not be permitted in their presence. In the light of what has transpired in their particular experience, it is easy to agree to this philosophy.

But how are boys to learn things unless they see and seek to imitate or excel? It is worth little, to be sure, to hang by one's teeth to a swinging rope, but that skill may be useful in the life of a person once in a great while. Ability to jump from limb to limb and swing suspended by one's hands, is not a common necessity, yet physical skill and strength are better possessed than not. The throwing of a javelin is not one of the necessities of ordinary civilization, yet it is well to be able to command one's strength when emergency may arise.

How are men to learn things except by seeing them done? How would men attain their highest skill unless they begin in early youth? The three little Statesboro lads who have come to misfortune in trying to learn have gone through the only route which insures a perfect lesson—the learning by experience. It is needful that all these lessons of caution should be properly taught; experience is the sure and reliable teacher. Proper lessons are learned only by mistakes. Sometimes the lad who is prevented from attempting those things which are difficult, is being retarded in his processes of becoming a man of worth in his community.

Maybe we ought to take Miss Liberty off the dollar and substitute the likeness of one of those ladies who wiggle.

Now that the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed let us hope there will be a recession in the number of prohibition jokers.

CREDITABLE EDITION

One of the few really worthwhile special editions that has issued last week by the Tattall Journal, of Reidsville. The edition comprised forty pages and was filled with historical and interesting reading matter such as is useful to make an edition really valuable. There were comparatively few advertisements in the issue, due, as the editor mildly intimated, to lack of appreciation on the part of the merchants of Reidsville. The absence of these advertisements, however, made the issue all the more valuable to those other patrons who took space, and likewise more valuable from the standpoint of general value. One real fault with many special editions is that they are almost exclusively advertising circulars, with a general dearth of such matter as appeals to a reading public. Not so with Brother Rhoden's Tattall Journal—it was filled to the brim with interesting reading matter and just enough advertising to make it make it self-sustaining.

It was a creditable edition. We presume that General Johnson would call the critics of the government "tree camp" program "constitutional caterpillars."

A period of inflation is a time when anybody can light a cigar with a ten-dollar bill—providing he has enough money to buy a cigar.

When the time arrives in the not too far distant future when everybody is on the government payroll, who is going to do the work?

To Correct Errors In New State Code

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 26.—(GPS)—Georgia's secretary of state, John B. Wilson, will probably rest easier now that a few typographical errors are to be corrected in the code that regulates the affairs of officials of the state of Georgia, according to the Atlanta Journal.

The present code requires that the secretary of state "must live in the capital." (Incidentally, Secretary Wilson moved to a farm near Atlanta not long ago and feels much at home.) Strictly interpreted, this code entry would mean that he must sleep on a cot in his office or stretch out on one of the tables in the house of representatives chamber, and it would require a long table for the present secretary to stretch his six feet four inches of height.

The intent of the lawmakers was that the secretary of state "must reside in the capital," which means the city in which the capital is located.

Another typographical error to be corrected in the new code is the requirement that "sheep be shown in various pastures under a tree" on the state seal kept in the secretary's office. Unable to get more than one pasture under a single tree the code commission has decided that the word should be "pastures" and will so write it.

Harry B. Stillman, of Ann Arbor, Mich., technical editor of the Georgia Code, pointed out the errors.

Keeps Promise and Hurries Back to Jail

(By Georgia Newspaper Alliance)

Milledgeville, Ga., Dec. 23.—Jimmy Ricks is in prison here. In a recent wheelchair jailbreak Jimmy escaped. He made his way to Atlanta and called Governor Talmadge on the telephone. The governor asked him to come and see him, Jimmy did, and Governor Talmadge, Judge G. A. Johns, of the prison commission, and Tom Linder, executive secretary, decided, after hearing Jimmy's story that he was due one day's leave to see his family.

"Be back at the state farm by 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon," the governor instructed Jimmy before the fugitive departed for his home in Fayetteville to see his family.

The difference in eastern and central time, not taken into consideration by Ricks, almost made him late, but by frantic hurrying he managed to reach the prison farm by 4 o'clock and keep his promise with Governor Talmadge.

Board Studies Plan For Producing Food

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 26.—(GPS)—Plans under which the State Hospital for Insane at Milledgeville would be enabled to produce a greater amount of food supplies are under consideration by the State Board of Control of Eleemosynary Institutions.

E. E. Lindsey, of Rome, newly appointed chairman of the board of control, has made a number of trips to the hospital recently, studying means of producing more food-stuffs on the hospital's farm.

He indicated that farm lands near the hospital, or those at or near some other institution might be acquired for use in growing more of the things that go into the giant pantries of the hospital where food is one of the chief items in the expense budget.

Local Young People At State University

Athens, Ga., Dec. 21.—Statesboro has three boys and four girls enrolled in the University of Georgia this year, according to figures released from the registrar's office here today. The boys are L. W. Armstrong, Paul G. Franklin and William H. Smith. The girls are Cecile Brannen, Lenna Josey, Edith L. Tyson and Daisy E. Vining.

The University has the largest enrollment in its history with more than 1,200 boys and 900 girls in attendance.

Relatives Barred on Jenkins Faculties

(By Georgia Newspaper Alliance)

Millen, Ga., Dec. 26.—No married women and no relatives of members of the boards of trustees may teach in the schools of Jenkins county, it was ruled at a meeting of the county board of education in called session here. The rule goes into effect at the beginning of the September, 1934, term.

It specifically states that included in "relatives" are "sons-in-law, daughters-in-law, husbands, wives, brothers, sisters, nieces and nephews."

The board also decided to raise the requirements of teachers. All teachers. All teachers employed by the county must have at least two years of college training.

Georgia Will Not Charge Back Taxes

The supreme court in two decisions handed down last week ruled that Governor Talmadge acted within his legal rights in suspending the five members of the Georgia public service commission and in appointing new members. One decision held that his act was that of an executive and was not subject to review by the courts. The supreme court's decision of this case was brief, the court holding:

"The governor's removal of the commissioners was in exercise of his political powers as an executive and was in no sense a judicial act that could be reviewed by the courts." The court also held that the suspension of the commissioners was not a violation of their constitutional property rights. Public office is not private property but a public trust, the court asserted.

The commissioners ousted were Chairman Perry and Commissioners McDonald, Woodruff, Felton and Knight.

Those named by the governor to replace them were Jud P. Wilhoit, chairman, and Commissioners Daniel, Huie, Goode and Davis.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Traveling Motion Picture Studio on World Tour

many of the other M-G-M stars at work and at play in California, will be shown on the special rear projection screen aboard the studio. They will be visible to an audience composed of guests about the rear of the studio, and with this exhibition it will be the first time in the history of this city that motion pictures have been shown on the street.

In connection with the coming of this attraction, it is especially interesting to know that far back in the office of the Studebaker Sales Corporation, South Bend, Ind., is a former Statesboro young man who is largely responsible for its local appearance.

That Statesboro boy is Otis Lucas, who a quarter of a century ago was a school boy in this city and who is remembered by a large class of middle-aged young people who were his classmates. Mr. Lucas co-operated with Mr. Macon, the State Theatre manager, and with Lannie F. Simmons, local representative of the Studebaker Corporation, in making possible the visitation of the traveling studio.

300 Families Will Go On Farms in Georgia

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 26.—(GPS)—Georgia's farm colony, soon to be established, will be the first such enterprise launched by the federal government.

As announced last week, a federal grant of $1,000,000 to carry on a farm rehabilitation experiment in the state has been approved. Chancellor Welner, of the University System, said a committee of the regents would meet this week to work out details of the program.

Under the plan the families will be placed on farms in Morgan, Jasper, Putnam, Green and Jones counties and advanced $2,500 each to carry on experiments in scientific farming.

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT

There will be preaching at Bethlehem church Saturday and Sunday, December 30 and 31, 1933. G. A. Hill from the Pulaski Association, and others will be present. (Fifth Saturday and Sunday.)

U. S. RELIEF FUNDS FOR 346 TEACHERS

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 26.—The federal relief administration last week came to the aid of 346 unemployed teachers who were assigned to help in overcrowded schools and to teach the pupils in schools closed for lack of funds. Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools, announced.

Ninety counties were represented in the first assignments which were made under the supervision of Paul Barrett, of the department of education. The announced assignments were all on hand which have been properly filed with the required information. Dr. Collins said.

This week's assignments brought to 800 the total of unemployed teachers already at work under the relief administration. Others have been tentatively assigned to vocational and adult illiteracy work.

In order to obtain extra teachers county school systems have been required to show their actual need, while teachers have been required to show their need of employment to county relief committees.

Meanwhile, the heads of the state department of education are planning immediate steps to reopen several closed schools.

Woman Editor Finds People Riding Trains

Cordele, Ga., Dec. 26.—(GPS)—"We are pleased to announce that the railroads seem to have come back into their own again and are humming with increased passenger trade like unto bygone days when people really rode the trains to visit their friends and relatives and sometimes used them for pleasure instead of only business," Mrs. Chas. E. Brown, editor of the Cordele Daily Dispatch, says.

During the past depression people have had little thought for pleasure, so intent has been the business of making a living with everyone," Mrs. Brown adds, "but now since the lowered rates have been put in effect this makes it possible for people to begin indulging themselves in pleasurable train rides."

The railroads, while having a pretty tough time to make a go of things during the depression, according to local railroad officials, have not been idle or neglected of the means to improve their operation methods even while business was slack. Last year, furnished evidence, one official said, for fewer fatalities occurred on the railroads of the country than in any year since records were first put down in 1880.

The railroads have gone forward, impelled by competition and public opinion, in their quest for ultimate operating safety, it was stated.

BUFFET SUPPER

Miss Annie Brooks Grimes was hostess Friday evening to the Three O'Clocks and a few other guests at a buffet supper. After the supper, games were played at which Mrs. Marvin Cox and C. E. FOR MRS. BLAND

Complimenting Mrs. James Bland, a charming recent bride, was the lovely party Friday morning at which Misses Vivian and Frances Mathews were hostesses. They invited guests for four tables. Their lovely home was beautifully decorated with poinsettias and roses for the holiday season. The gift to the bride was a set of sterling silver tablespoons in the Hunt Club pattern. For high score an attractive package of novelty soap was won by Miss Daisy Vining. A hat for consolation went to Miss Evelyn Mathews. After the game a salad and a sweet course were served.

An End of the Year Message to Our Friends and Customers

THE YEAR NOW DRAWING TO A CLOSE HAS BEEN A MOST EVENTFUL ONE. OUR PEOPLE HAVE SHOWN GREAT STAMINA AND FORTITUDE IN MEETING AND DEALING WITH THE DESTRUCTIVE FORCES OF DEPRESSION.

NONE WILL WISH TO DWELL ON THE DIFFICULTIES OF THE PAST WHEN THERE IS SO MUCH HOPE AND PROMISE IN THE IMMEDIATE FUTURE.

WE HAVE COME A LONG WAY SINCE MARCH. THE YEAR HAS BEEN ONE OF ACCOMPLISHMENT IN GOVERNMENT AND IN BUSINESS. THE ECONOMIC SITUATION IS TREMENDOUSLY IMPROVED.

IT HAS BEEN OUR PLEASURE TO SERVE MANY OF YOU IN A VERY SUBSTANTIAL WAY DURING PAST YEARS.

WE DEEPLY APPRECIATE YOUR CONFIDENCE AND CONTINUED FRIENDSHIP.
